An effective algorithm for big streaming data

We will talk about an effective algorithm which intends to balance the misclassification cost and sparsity. Theoretical analysis on the bounds of the regret of action and cost, along with the comparison results with baseline methods on real-life streaming, high-dimensional data, will be presented.